Аннотация / Annotation
В статье исследуются особенности фондов межопштинских (межмуниципальных) исторических архивов Республики Сербия, содержащих документы по истории периода Нового времени, рассказывается о сети архивных учреждений в Сербии, приводится характеристика содержимого основных фондов и анализируется степень их применимости к современным историческим исследованиям по истории региона указанного периода.
The present article offers a brief review of the archive materials from the Serbian historical archives which possess the documents from the period of Modern History. It describes the archives network in Serbia, characterizes the corpus of documents and analyses their applicability to the contemporary researches in this discipline.

Ключевые слова / Keywords
Архивоведение, Сербия, архивная сеть, административно-территориальное устройство, општина, источниковая база. Serbia, archives network, administrative-territorial system, opshtina (municipality), source base.

The history of Serbia of the period of New time in last years draws special attention of historians. This results from the fact that many problems which this state had to face in last third XIX-beginning XX century, have found again urgency. It is a question of the problems connected with political culture, with the international and interethnic relations and with other important questions. In this connection researchers have a requirement of attraction to work of historical sources that, in turn, leads to necessity of the reference to funds of historical archives of Serbia.
The vigorous activity on gathering of archival materials and their ordering has begun after the World War II termination. In 1948 in republic Serbia territory it has been opened sixteen archives. The modern archival network of Serbia consists of more than thirty historical archives on all country.
It is important to notice that in New time some territories of modern Serbia were in structure of other state formations.

[redacted] Back [redacted] здесь [redacted]